FAQs

What if I was planning a university business trip to one of these states?

Your options are:

- Use auxiliary funding if your department has that available
- Attend virtually
- Unfortunately, cancel the trip

What if I already paid for some expenses to travel to one of these states?

- If the item was purchased before the effective date, it can be paid for with state funds. However, any expenses that were paid after the effective date must be paid for with auxiliary funds.

What are auxiliary funds?

- Corporation or Foundation funds (must allow for travel).

Can I get an exception? My trip is really important.

- Exceptions to this ban are rare and are unlikely to be approved. Below are the allowable exceptions.
  1. Enforcement of California law, including auditing and revenue collection.
  2. Litigation.
  3. To meet contractual obligations incurred before January 1, 2017.
  4. To comply with requests by the federal government to appear before committees.
  5. To participate in meetings or training required by a grant or required to maintain grant funding.
  6. To complete job-required training necessary to maintain licensure or similar standards required for holding a position, in the event that comparable training cannot be obtained in California or a different state not subject to the travel prohibition.
  7. For the protection of public health, welfare, or safety, as determined by the affected agency, department, board, authority, or commission, or by the affected legislative office. (Gov. Code, § 11139.8, subd. (c).)

My job as a faculty requires me to present research at conferences. Does this meet exception #5 or #6 above?

- If the trip is not absolutely required job training necessary for actual licensure, or if the training can be obtained in California or a non-banned state, it does not qualify for these exceptions.
